

Which one should you enroll in?

Audit | Prospective Credit | Seminary Program Credit

Audit

AED 350/credit

(Attend the class
no grade or credit)

- Online audit students pay an additional AED 100 tech fee
- In-person audit students do not pay a technology fee
- Registration closes 7 days before the class begins
- An audit student is someone who signs up to attend one-off classes offered by GTS.
- These students have no obligation to complete readings, assignments, or exams, and they do not receive academic credit toward certificates or degrees for the classes they attend.
- Audit students typically attend classes for personal enrichment or knowledge acquisition without pursuing formal academic credentials.

Prospective Credit

AED 450/credit

(Earn credit that can count toward a future GTS program)

- Tech fee per term: AED 350 (online) / AED 200 (in-person)
- Registration closes 7 days before the class begins. Because assignments are required, enroll at least three (3) weeks before the class begins.
- A prospective credit student at GTS is someone who has not been previously accepted or enrolled at GTS.
- They choose to take a specific course offered to the public and can earn credit towards GTS degree programs.
- These students must complete course assignments on the regular schedule.
- Credit for these courses will not be awarded immediately. Instead, it will be granted later after the student applies, is accepted, and officially enrolls as a GTS student.

Program Credit

AED 450/credit

(Must be currently enrolled in a program at GTS)

- Same course fees as prospective credit.
- A credit student at GTS is someone who has gone through our one-time application process and been confirmed.
- They are actively enrolled in courses and are committed to working diligently every semester.
- Credit students complete multiple readings, assignments, and exams with the goal of earning a Certificate or Master's Degree at GTS.
